News from our graduates

Sandra Kneale

I graduated 12 years ago. In the first two years after university, I tried a lot of different jobs. I worked in a lawyer's office for six months, then in a clothes shop, and lots of other places, but I didn't like any of the jobs. Finally, I got a job with an estate agent's in London.

I enjoyed looking at houses and taking people to see them. I really liked the job, and I met some very interesting people, too. I worked there for four years, but I really wanted to start my own company, and be my own boss. However, there was a lot of competition; estate agency is very popular in the UK!

I got my chance when I went on holiday to Dubai. I was only there for ten days, but while I was there I met my future husband, Sami. He's from Finland, and he works in the oil industry out there. Sami showed me around Dubai, and it was amazing. They were building thousands of houses and apartments. I thought this was the place for my new company.

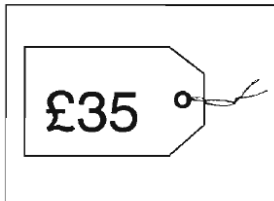

I moved to Dubai to be with Sami, and started my own estate agency. We got married a year later, and now we've got two children – a boy and a girl. I've been here for six years, and the company is doing well. It's been a bit more difficult since the children were born, but it's still great. I think my move here was the best decision that I've ever made.
